Introduction to Hotel Rwanda

"Hotel Rwanda," directed by Terry George, is a powerful film that recounts the harrowing events of the 1994 Rwandan Genocide through the lens of real-life hero Paul Rusesabagina. Set against the backdrop of ethnic conflict between the Hutu and Tutsi populations, the film portrays the struggles of Rusesabagina, who managed to save over a thousand Tutsi refugees by providing them shelter in the Hôtel des Mille Collines. The film serves both as a gripping narrative and a poignant reminder of the atrocities that occurred during this dark chapter.
