Conditioning

Leather can dry out over time, leading to cracks and damage. Use a leather conditioner periodically to keep the leather supple and prevent it from losing its natural oils.

Storage

When not in use, store your leather business bag in a cool, dry place. Avoid hanging it by its handles, as this can cause stretching. Instead, place it in a dust bag or box to protect it from dust and light.

Protection

Consider using a leather protector spray to guard against water and stains. This can help maintain the look of your bag and prolong its life.
