Understanding Fictitious Business Names

Definition and Purpose

A fictitious business name (FBN), also known as a "doing business as" (DBA) name, is an alias used by a business that differs from its legal name. For instance, if a sole proprietor named Jane Doe runs a bakery called "Jane's Sweet Treats," she is using a fictitious business name. This practice allows businesses to operate under a name that may better represent their products or services.

Legal Requirements

In California, any business operating under a name that is not its legal name must file for a fictitious business name statement. This requirement helps to maintain transparency in the marketplace and protect consumers. When businesses register their FBNs, it provides a public record, which can help in building trust with clients and customers.
