What is a Business Line of Credit?

A business line of credit is a flexible loan option that provides businesses with access to a set amount of funds that can be drawn upon as needed. Unlike traditional loans that provide a lump sum, a line of credit allows businesses to withdraw funds up to a specified limit and only pay interest on the amount used. This can be particularly advantageous for managing cash flow fluctuations and covering operational costs without the burden of a large upfront payment.

Types of Business Lines of Credit

There are generally two types of business lines of credit: secured and unsecured. A secured line of credit requires collateral, such as real estate or inventory, which can lower the interest rates. In contrast, an unsecured line of credit does not require collateral but may come with higher interest rates due to the increased risk to the lender.
