In the business hierarchy, H2 typically refers to the second tier of management, which includes roles such as department managers, team leaders, and project managers. Understanding the dynamics of H2 is essential for a business to ensure that strategies are effectively implemented and that teams are guided towards achieving organizational objectives.

The concept of H2 can be understood through its relationship with H1 and H3. H1 represents executive-level management, which outlines the larger strategic objectives of the organization. H3, on the other hand, consists of frontline employees who carry out the day-to-day operations. H2 acts as a bridge, ensuring that the directives from H1 are translated into actionable plans and that the feedback from H3 is communicated back up the chain.

This involves setting performance metrics, timelines, and deliverables that align with the company's vision.
