Time Management

Setting the Scene

Imagine entering a dimly lit room that resembles a vintage detective's office. The atmosphere is thick with suspense as players discover a mysterious letter hinting at a murder that occurred in the vicinity. The goal is to unravel the mystery before time runs out.

Initial Clue Discovery

The first step is to search for initial clues within the room. Players might find:

- A torn photograph of the victim and a suspect.

- Various objects that may serve as tools for solving puzzles.

These items provide a foundation for understanding the narrative and the relationships between characters involved in the murder.

Following the Leads

As players begin solving puzzles, they will piece together the story behind the murder. Each solved puzzle may unlock new areas or provide additional clues. For example, solving a logic puzzle might reveal a combination to a locked drawer containing vital evidence, such as a weapon or a motive.
