The GRE is a standardized test that assesses graduate school candidates' analytical writing, verbal reasoning, and quantitative reasoning skills. It is widely accepted by many graduate schools across various disciplines. The test consists of three main sections: Analytical Writing, Verbal Reasoning, and Quantitative Reasoning. Understanding the structure and content of the GRE is essential for effective preparation.

Each section of the GRE is designed to evaluate specific competencies. The Analytical Writing section requires candidates to write an argument and analyze an issue, showcasing their critical thinking and analytical writing skills. The Verbal Reasoning section measures the ability to understand and analyze written material, while the Quantitative Reasoning section tests mathematical skills and concepts.
